THAT NEW CHARTER. AGAINST HIS MOTHER

The Subcommittee Will Meet Today to Complete Its Work.

WHAT WILL THE MAYOR'S TERM BE?

That Is One of the Interesting Features of the Matter—Other Probable Features.

Macon News in Brief.

Macon, Ga., (August 15.—Special.)—The city charter subcommittee will meet tomorrow to complete and perfect their work before submitting it to the general committee for adoption.

The subcommittee consists of Hon. Nat E. Harris, Judge Clifford Anderson and Judge Charles L. Bartlett. Judge Bartlett has gone to Chicago, but Messrs. Harris and Anderson will meet and finish their work before submitting it to the general committee for adoption.

Chairman Harris has already drawn off the outline of the charter and he and Judge Anderson will fill it out.

Some time ago the people of Macon in mass meeting assembled resolved that the city of Macon should have a new charter, and the present charter has been amended and patched that it is difficult to tell what it means. Major J. F. Hanson was chosen chairman of the citizens' general committee and the subcommittee above named was appointed to draw up the new charter.

Messrs. Harris and Bartlett have each been city attorney and Judge Anderson is thoroughly conversant with city affairs, hence the committee are well qualified for the work delegated to them to perform.

The Mayor's Term.

Perhaps one of the most interesting provisions of the new charter will be that in reference to the term of office of the mayor. Not until 1930 was there any restriction to the length of time the mayor could serve. He was qualified to serve just so long as the people saw fit to elect him. For instance, Hon. W. A. Huff was mayor ten years and Hon. S. B. Price will have been mayor nine years at the expiration of this year. But in 1930 Hon. W. A. Huff was a member of the legislature, and he had passed making the mayor's term three years, instead of two, declaring him ineligible to re-election to a successive term. In December, 1930, Price was elected under the new law, and his term of three years expires next December.

He will be ineligible to re-election unless the new charter repeats the present law, and makes new provisions. It is hinted that the new charter may provide that the mayor's term shall consist of two years, and he may be eligible to election to a successive term. In other words, the term of office of the mayor will be two years, next December will run until December, 1935, and he will then be eligible for re-election for a second term of two years.

The old charter does not require the mayor and the city council to be elected at the same time. The new charter may require him to be a freeloader.

Several Commissions.

The new charter may provide several commissions for the city, such as police, fire, and health, and there may be a commission for streets, parks, etc. All of these commissions may not be provided for in the new charter, but it seems very probable that there will be at least a police commission.

The charter will be submitted to the people for ratification. Of course, it will have to be passed by the legislature before it can become a law.

President Gambrell's Tour.

President J. B. Gambrell, of Mercer university, is making a canvass of the state for students for the fall term, which begins September 20th, next. He is this week in Greene county. He said he desired to commence his work at Pennington, where the university has a field. President Gambrell expresses himself as greatly encouraged by the outlook for Mercer's new year. The term will commence with at least 200 students. The enrollment will increase with each month, President Gambrell is an indefatigable worker and is accomplishing much good for the time being.

An Alumni Chapter.

Hon. J. L. Hardeman is at work to establish an alumni chapter of Kappa Alpha in Macon. He has splendid material at hand. Some of the best citizens of Macon were members of this popular secret society when at college. The chapter will organize with about forty members. Some of the gentlemen are: J. L. Hardeman, J. C. Abbott, G. D. Allen, Wm. W. W. Stone, A. J. Ryals, W. H. Woodson and others. The organization will be for social pleasures.

A Broken Arm.

Mr. T. J. Cailing was so unfortunate as to break his arm yesterday afternoon. He is the builder and chief electrician of the building. While standing on a pit under a car in the road's shed near Rose Hill cemetery, he accidentally fell into the pit and catching on his right hand, broke his arm just above the wrist. Mr. J. H. Heitz, another well-known citizen who is also interested in the road, fell into the same pit a few days ago and sprained one of his legs.

Something New.

A number of sawmill and timber men along the line of the Georgia coast and Florida railroad intend to plant the pine lands on which timber has been cut in peach trees and grape vines. These lands, after being cleared of timber, would sell for fine prices if orchards and vineyards are made to flourish on them. This would be putting fine lands to a new and most excellent use.

Clearing House Certificates.

According to present indications the Macon banks will not issue clearing house certificates for the purpose of moving cotton. The Macon banks and warehousemen say there is no need of them, for they will have plenty of money with which to hold the crop. The money not needed to hold the crop, but there will be a sufficiency to move it. Therefore, clearing house certificates will not be necessary. One of the largest warehousemen in Macon wrote one of his heaviest patrons today that there would be plenty of money in Macon to move cotton, but not to hold it.

The Annual Session of the Grand Encampment of the Independent Order Odd Fellows of Georgia met in Masonic temple today. The encampment opened with prayer by Rev. A. C. Ward, grand chaplain. A. N. Manney, past grand patriarch of Savannah, delivered a very able and highly interesting address.

The following officers of the encampment were elected for the ensuing year: Grand patriarch, M. O. Berry, of Columbus; Grand high priest, George Rakestraw, of Gainesville; Grand senior warden, George W. Rush, of Brunswick; Grand junior warden, H. M. Ward, of Savannah.

Representatives to sovereign grand lodge, J. C. Blount, of Atlanta, and C. A. Robb, of Augusta.

The appointed officers are as follows: L. R. Hall, of Atlanta, grand treasurer; J. G. Deitz, of Macon, grand scribe; P. J. Leake, of Marietta, grand marshal; C. H. Grand, of Lawrenceville, inside sentinel, and B. C. Reynolds, outside sentinel.

The grand lodge will meet tomorrow morning. Mayor Goodwin and other prominent citizens of Atlanta will be in attendance.

Newspapers.

The Feast of the Assumption was celebrated today at St. Joseph's Catholic church. The masses were largely attended.

A Desperate Fight of an Augusta Tough with the Police.

HE SWAM TO THE CAROLINA SHORE

But Was Three Times Caught, Escaping Twice—The New Georgia Road Schedule—Other News.

Augusta, Ga., August 15.—(Special.)—A reduction of 10 per cent in the wages of the employees of the electric street railroad was made today. No discrimination was made, but from the highest to the lowest in the power house, motormen and conductors are affected by the cut. Colonel Dyer says on account of the dull times he was compelled to make a reduction of expenses and, after consideration, thought it wisest to lower salaries 10 per cent rather than to throw men out of employment altogether. The entire force appreciate the condition of affairs and accepted the change, which Colonel Dyer hopes will be only temporary, without any objection. By the reduction of wages there will be no reduction of force and all men will retain their positions.

A Case of Highway Robbery.

The police had a hard time this morning capturing Raymond Ready, a tall, powerfully built white man who stole a pair of shoes from W. J. McKinney's buggy this morning. It was a case of highway robbery and gave him a stinging blow. "D-n you," he cried, "I'll cut your d-n heart out," and suiting the action to the word, he drew his knife and was just about to slash the neck of McKinney when he was arrested. He was attracted to the spot by the great racket that was being raised, caught his knife and was just about to slash the neck of McKinney when he was arrested. A Revolution In Eating has been brought about by the introduction of COTTOLENE, the new vegetable shortening.

The discovery of this product, and the demonstration of its remarkable qualities, has attracted the widest interest.

Hitherto the common shortening has been lard, or indifferent butter. Every one has probably suffered occasional discomfort from lard-cooked food; while it is well known that thousands are obliged to abstain entirely from everything of that kind.

To such people, COTTOLENE is of peculiar value, widening as it does the range of what may be eaten and enjoyed. COTTOLENE is a cooking marvel. It combines with the food—imparts to it a tempting color, a delicate flavor, and an appetizing crispness. No trace of greasiness remains to offend the taste, or disturb the digestion.

COTTOLENE is worthy of the careful notice of all those who value good food, of itself or for its hygienic properties.

"ALIE ON HIS LIPS,"

So Died Robert McBride, Says Pat Meehan, His Slayer.

"IF MY WIFE HAD NOT BEEN INNOCENT"

Says Meehan, "I Would Not Have Killed Him."

FINDING OF THE CORONER'S JURY.

Meehan Carried to Jail Yesterday—He Tells the Story of the Killing.

Full Particulars Given.

In the big, flat, barred, iron cage, with its four gated sides and top and floor of sheet iron, standing in the upstairs corridor of the county jail, Pat Meehan, the slayer of Robert McBride, spat last night.

He was transferred from the police station at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and expressed himself as being gratified at the charge. He left the police headquarters in the charge of Captain Thompson. The two rode to the jail in a hack.

At the jail Captain Thompson turned over to Jailer Corrigan the warrant for murder, sworn out against Meehan by Will McBride, and Meehan formally became the guest of the state on the charge of murder. He asked for the morning and afternoon papers, which he had not had an opportunity of reading before leaving the police station.

The Coroner's Inquest.

At 9 o'clock yesterday morning Coroner Paden and the twelve men who were to decide about the killing of Robert McBride met again at Patterson's undertaking establishment. There, amid the gruesome coffins, they proceeded with the investigation.

The morning's proceedings proved to be entirely out of the usual order of coroners' jury proceedings. The jury spent the entire morning listening to evidence in the case and then adjourned with the verdict that McBride came to his death by a pistol shot wound inflicted by Pat Meehan, which could have been reached in three minutes with the testimony of only Mr. Meehan.

The feature of the testimony was the story of the entire trouble as related by Dr. Longino, the friend of McBride. The doctor told it with a faithfulness and accuracy that impressed the jury. He offered no palliation for the conduct of his dead friend, but at one time he, without any apparent intention to do so, threw the whole blame of the tragedy upon the shoulders of Sheriff Carmichael, who of all men concerned should have been most active in the effort to secure an amicable adjustment of the affair.

But Dr. Carmichael could not help but think that Carmichael could have averted the disaster, and after telling at length the story of McBride's visit to him, his visit to Carmichael, just as was given in yesterday's Constitution, he said of his conference with Coveta's sheriff, held after the hour of midnight:

"I said to him that I had come to represent McBride, who was as helpless as a babe. McBride says he has done wrong, takes all the blame on himself and is just waiting to do all that any man can do. He tells me you are his friend and puts his case in your hands. He wouldn't have you lose confidence in him for a million dollars, and will make every apology in the world to Mrs. Meehan."

In spite of all this the sheriff showed little disposition to make terms, and continued to intimate that McBride had better keep away, that there would in all human probability be a shooting affair. Then Dr. Longino said to him:

"Mr. Carmichael, you are fifty years old and a man of experience and reason. What more can a man do than come to you and say, 'I have wronged you, I am not heartily, I am willing to do anything to repair that wrong? What more can any man do, and what manner of man would he be who would not accept such an apology as that?'"

Dr. Longino's statement contained little or nothing not touched upon in the statement published in yesterday's paper.

Mr. Meehan was brought before the jury, but said but little. He said he was too much wrought up to talk about the affair and was excused. Others, whose testimony was immaterial, were examined.

The War Over the Verdict.

The tug of war came over the verdict. Ten men of the jury wanted to return a finding of murder. Two men, Dr. Alley and another opposed such a verdict. There were some plain expressions from the jury-men, and after considerable wrangling a compromise verdict was agreed upon. It declared that McBride came to his death from two pistol shot wounds inflicted by a pistol in the hands of Pat Meehan. It closed with the declaration: "We are not able to determine the degree of the offense."

Meehan received the news of the verdict without saying a word. He spent the morning very quietly in his cell, receiving but a few visitors. One of his first callers was Sheriff Carmichael, who came up on the early train and went at once to the police station. Carmichael remained with Meehan quite awhile and promised to attend to all the outside details of his defense. He brought the prisoner a message from his wife and home, which cheered Meehan considerably.

During the afternoon Meehan employed defend Mr. Messrs. Dorsey, Brewster & Howell, the well known attorneys. Mr. Albert Howell had a half hour talk with his client before he was transferred to the jail. The talk was purely confidential and Meehan went over the entire history of the trouble. He placed himself in the hands of his attorneys and expressed his desire to act under their instructions to the letter.

An Interview with Meehan.

At the jail yesterday afternoon Meehan gave to The Constitution reporter the first interview that he has yet accorded to the press. He has talked in a fitful, incoherent way, but yesterday afternoon he gave something like a connected story to the Constitution.

He had just finished reading the grain written statement of Robert McBride and held the paper in his hand. His face was flushed and he appeared more nervous than usual.

"You may say for me that McBride died with a lie on his lips," said he, with strong emphasis, "he died with a lie on his lips. He lied like a dog. He knew he was lying when he said men visited my house to see my wife. There was a colored servant girl there and two negro men roomed in the rear. That's a cruel lie."

"McBride wrote that statement intending to use it in his own defense. It was his idea when he wrote it that he might kill me and this statement, purporting to have been written in anticipation of death, would be good evidence in his defense."

"I placed every confidence in McBride, and so did my wife. We believed him to be a high minded gentleman with an irreproachable moral character. If I had not believed that I would never have admitted him to the shelter of my home. He always acted like a gentleman. Last summer when I was at home he seemed to take a pleasure in making my vacation pleasant. I liked him and knew nothing, absolutely nothing against him until last Monday night. I now believe him to have been a most immoral man."

"I came home to defend my wife from the insult he had given her. Sheriff Carmichael or no one is to blame for what I did. I do not know that my wife knew that I intended to kill McBride. She only knew that I had come home to protect her."

"I came to Atlanta Monday to look after my business. I spent the day seeing goods and had no thought of meeting McBride here. I went to the depot to catch the train for home, and there I saw McBride by accident. I lost control of myself; I became uncontrollably angry when I thought of her delicate condition and the fact that she was to be confined in about six weeks, and thought that I had trusted this man in my home with my loved ones, my wife and children, and he had grossly insulted my wife."

"I shot him with the thought of these things flooding through my brain. I regret that it was necessary."

"If I had caught a man in the room with my wife I would not have killed him; I would have said to her, 'Go, I am done with you forever.' But this was different. I was protecting a virtuous and innocent woman. Here an innocent woman had been insulted and it was my duty to defend and protect her."

Mr. Meehan's attention was called to the view Will McBride had taken to avenge his brother's death. He smiled faintly at this and replied:

"Well, he will have to come to jail for his revenge."

Meehan has been in the employ of Applegate & Sons, wholesale whisky dealers, and on account of his trouble he will have to give up his position. He says he will write to his firm today and tell them about his troubles. "I guess they think I am doing a bad job now," said he.

A Curious Rumor.

Mr. Meehan was asked about a rumor to the effect that he had planned a match between Robert McBride and his wife's unmarried sister, Miss Minnie Moneghan. Miss Moneghan was for twelve years a sister of mercy in the convent of the Sacred Heart at Augusta. She left the convent in 1875, and resided here in the outside world, going to New York and taking up her home with her sister. Rumor has had it since that she was induced to leave the convent with the view that a match might be made between her and McBride. Mr. Meehan strongly and emphatically denied this last night.

"Miss Moneghan left the convent because of her health. I went to Augusta last December and brought her home. She has since lived as one of my family. There was no thought of her marrying McBride. I would not have entertained such a thought for a moment. Nothing ever passed between them that would give rise to such a rumor."

The last of the money was carried to Elizabeth, N. J., for interment yesterday. It was carried to the Richmond and Danville train at 8:30 o'clock, accompanied by the heartbroken brother. The funeral will occur at Elizabeth today. The father and mother of the dead man left Savannah Monday night for Elizabeth.

HE ROBBED A SAFE.

Although But Eleven Years Old—Detectives Capture a Youthful Offender.

An eleven-year-old safe robber is a novelty even in the most lawless criminal circles. Such a phenomenon did the city detectives and their manager of criminals yesterday morning.

The new find is Thomas Knowell, very black, very bright eye, very ragged and very unimpressive. He gives promise of eclipsing the fame of some of the most noted criminals in the country and the detectives feel proud of him.

Young Knowell has been working at odd jobs around the furniture store of B. M. White & Co., on Edgewood avenue. He is too small to be of much service, but he has a cunning way of getting into things. In fact, he has displayed tact and judgment enough to warrant the manager in turning the entire affairs of the company over to his youthful management. He is not at all backward in telling what he knows and volunteered advice and opinion without the least hesitation and without any change above the paltry dimes he received for his occasional job of work.

Night before last he noticed that Mr. White did not lock his safe when he closed up the store. He had previously noticed that there was quite a sum of money in the drawer in the safe and had noted how the drawer was arranged. He quietly slipped up a window as Mr. White was leaving the store, and when the doors were locked up for the night.

Some time very late that night little Knowell returned to the store and sought out that window. He found it all right, enough in the moonlight and he clambered up to it and through it into the interior of the storehouse. He soon found the safe and pulled it open. He had a little difficulty in getting out the safe, but although Thomas Knowell is but a small lump of flesh, very young in years, he is a mountain of will and got that door open about as neatly and quickly as a professional could have done it.

Then Thomas Knowell displayed a trait peculiar to some burglars of his class. He did not take all the money he found in the safe. He knew these were hard times, and he hefted the contents of the drawer and took half, about $55. He then made his exit.

Yesterday morning the matter was reported to Captain Wright and Detective McCord, and "Crim" were detailed on the case. They soon fastened the robbery on Thomas Knowell, eleven years old, and soon secured a full confession from him. Thomas is now locked up, repenting of his crime.

He is Very Well Looking.

C. A. White, who is wearing a very swell suit of clothes, and who has three trunks packed in his baggage, was taken to the baggage room, is under arrest at police headquarters charged with larceny. He was caught by the number of his baggage check.

Several days ago a telegram was received from Florence, S. C., asking for the arrest of White on a charge of larceny. No details of the alleged crime were given. The numbers of three baggage checks were included in the telegram, and these numbers were turned over to the officer who patrolled the beat around the depot.

Yesterday White presented his checks for the three trunks and Patrolman Harp arrested him. White denies having committed any crime and expresses surprise at his arrest. He is a good looking young man of about twenty-six years, dresses well, talks well and has a good appearance generally. The authorities of Florence will be notified of his arrest.

THE BANKERS MEET.

They Don't Care to Rush Hastily Into New Methods,

BUT WILL MEET ANY EMERGENCY.

Wide Awake and Willing, Yet They Are Confident and Commandingly Conservative—What May Be Done.

Every bank in Atlanta belonging to the clearing house was represented at the meeting last night, held at the office of Captain Robert Lowry in the Equitable building.

Captain Lowry, who is president of the clearing house, presided over the meeting. All of the presidents of the banks and leading bankers of the city were present, and without delay the business before them was taken up, it being the petition from the Chamber of Commerce and citizens' meeting held the day before asking the banks to issue clearing house certificates in case of necessity in order that the cotton crop may be moved speedily when it rolls into market.

The resolution adopted by the meeting at the chamber of Commerce was read before the bankers as soon as the meeting was called to order as follows:

Whereas, in view of the importance of providing ample funds for handling the cotton crop tributary to this market, and owing to the present financial condition, the money currently heretofore furnishing the required currency cannot be relied on for the usual assistance, be it

Resolved, That the associated banks of Atlanta be requested to issue clearing house certificates in such amounts as may be found necessary to provide ample funds for handling this business.

This brought the bankers face to face with the issue, and a lengthy debate was precipitated.

It was clear from the very outset that the bankers were more than willing to meet the demands made upon them by the citizens' petition, but the question that was sprung by many of the leading members of the clearing house was, is it the time for issuing clearing house certificates now.

The bankers went quite into a detailed examination of the situation confronting the banks and the people at present. They manifested all deference to the wishes of the people, and it was clear from every speech that was made that the banks will meet the cotton trade with a readiness most satisfactory. But, the sentiment was general that the banks ought not to resort to extreme measures until the demands were correspondingly extreme.

At present this is not the case with the banks. They can meet all the demands the legitimate business of their patrons make upon them. They have not felt the pressure of the hard times reported from other cities. They are in excellent condition. There is no fright, no doubt among the business men who do business with the Atlanta banks, and surely these considerations were not such as to warrant the banks to leap hastily into a system of exchange that has not been found necessary here in years past.

Still there was that feeling of willingness manifested on all sides to meet every issue bearing upon the best interests of the city. There was not the slightest opposition expressed against the plan suggested by the meeting of the citizens, the plan of issuing clearing house certificates.

It was the opinion of Captain English, of the American Trust and Banking Company, and others that if when the cotton crop begins to come in there is not sufficient cash to handle it, it would be very wise and well to have the banks composing the clearing house issue these certificates, but circulate them only among themselves, not among the trading people.

Then later if it became necessary to issue certificates that may be used in pushing off the cotton crop from the Atlanta market let it be done. But, certainly, not until the banks had manipulated clearing house certificates among themselves, it being easily believed that this would be sufficient.

The bankers showed every sign of being wide awake. They were at the same time cautious. If they had been acting under the impulse of a crisis they would have certainly not hesitated to declare in favor of issuing the certificates as asked for by the citizens' meeting. But the fact must not be overlooked that the Atlanta bankers did not meet under such impulses.

A Committee Appointed.

After much discussion and debate in the line set forth above it was decided by the members of the clearing house to take no definite action on the matter at present, but to appoint a committee to take the matter under consideration and await instructions from the clearing house.

This committee consists of President Lowry, Mr. Romare, of the Atlanta National, and Mr. Collier, of the Capital City, and they were instructed to inquire into the operation of the clearing house certificate plan inaugurated by the city of New York and other cities east and west that have been compelled to bridge over the hard times in this way.

The committee will get the forms of the certificates and have everything in readiness for the action of the clearing house of Atlanta if it should at any time become necessary to lubricate the machinery of the city's financial system with such methods.

Representatives from all of the clearing house banks of the city were present at the meeting as follows: Atlanta National Bank, Lowry Banking Company, Capital City Bank, American Trust and Banking Company, Madox-Rucker Banking Company, Merchants' bank, Southern Banking and Trust Company, Neal Loan and Banking Company and the Atlanta Trust and Banking Company.

LITTLE SWITZERLAND.—Recent publications, says Mr. Philip Maltby, concerning Little Switzerland, do the place injustice. It has become the custom whenever a man takes a bottle of whisky out to Grant park to charge it up to Little Switzerland. Mr. Maltby keeps an orderly place, where he endeavors to please his patrons, and he does not like to be mixed up with affairs in which he has no concern. He refers to the members of the police force to corroborate what he says.

A LARGE CROWD

Gathered at the Industrial Hall Last Night to Hear the Addresses.

ALL WERE WELL PAID FOR THE EVENING

Many of the Most Interesting Talks of the Week Were Made by Those Who Responded to the Call.

Atlanta has twenty-six labor organizations, every one of which is in a prosperous and healthy condition.

Representatives of nineteen of the twenty-six met last night in the hall of the Atlanta Industrial council and before one of the largest and most attentive audiences assembled together.

The industrial council is composed of delegates from the various organizations in the city and when it meets the liveliest interest is shown in the welfare of the congress by the attendance, which is now growing. When the council was formed in January last it was made up of six members, but since then it has grown until now it is almost impossible to find a comfortable seat in the hall.

The meeting last night was one of the most interesting and entertaining the council has ever had. When president Evans called the meeting to order there was not a vacant chair in the hall and those who filled the chairs were among the leaders of the various trades in the city. There was no formality about the meeting and those who dropped into the hall found it a most entertaining place for an hour or more.

It was brightly lighted and the cool air found its way through the windows of those present. The council when it was organized was intended for an interchange of ideas among the members and the interchange last night cannot help resulting in good to those who were present.

Mr. Dave Vining was the first gentleman to speak and his talk was like it always is interesting and catchy. He took the ground in one of his speeches, for he was called on twice, that the laboring men should stand together and work with their balleys for what they wanted. He declared that one of the needs of the working man and of the people generally was the supplying of books to their children at the schools free of cost. He declared that Atlanta has the best and most complete system of free schools in the country and said that the system could be made better by giving the children books free.

He said that the educational system of Atlanta was equal to that at Athens and other college towns, but thought it was far better to keep the children at home and educate them. Mr. Vining's talk caught the audience and placed him among them as a leader on the proposition for free school-books.

Mr. White, the president of the federation of trades, was called for and made one of the nearest talks of the evening. It was short and to the point. He declared that the country had a broad, wide future before it, and that much good would come to the laboring man from the frequent and free consultation the council offered. Mr. White's talk was one to which those present listened attentively.

HIGHEST OF ALL IN LEAVENING POWER.—LATEST U. S. GOV'T REPORT.

Counties Convicts Often Have a Rough Time of It and No Redress.

A CASE REPORTED FROM BIBB.

A Prisoner on the Changinag Begs the Governor to Transfer Him to the Penitentiary.

The legislature at its next session, which begins in October, will have to do something with the county changinag system. Some legislation relating to the control of the changinag prisoners will be brought before the general assembly. Most likely Governor Northen will touch on the subject in his message and make recommendations to the legislature.

"No one feels it his duty to look after the county convicts and no doubt they are often treated cruelly," said the governor yesterday. "There was a case reported from Greene county recently and another reported from Bibb, and information frequently comes here of the bad treatment of the county prisoners. But the governor has nothing to do with them now and there is no general system of inspection. We have the penitentiary department in very good shape. An inspector makes regular visits to the various camps and if all is not going on right there he makes a report of it and it is remedied. Whenever a case of cruelty is reported from a changinag the blame is put on the penitentiary department outside of the state. There should be an inspection of these changinags and mismanagement should be reported to the Governor."

The case from Bibb is that of a prisoner named C. A. Abbott, who was sent to the changinag by Judge Ross, of the city court of Macon, for larceny from the house. The amount which Abbott got was small, but the case looked bad against him and he was sentenced to a year on each. Abbott was sentenced a few weeks ago. He did not take to the gang at all and wrote to the governor, putting up a tale of wretched suffering and cruelty. He said that he was compelled to work fourteen hours a day in rain or shine, and if he went to the quarters wet he had to sleep in his wet clothes. He complained that he had to sleep between two negroes. He said that he was often whipped severely and declared that there were marks on his back

Is well with
With Your Kidneys

Few appreciate the constant duties performed by the kidneys, yet fewer appreciate how easily these important organs are degraded.

An important function of the kidneys is to eliminate urea, uric acid and other waste products which so quickly poison the whole system if left to course through the blood.

When the kidneys become diseased and fail to discharge their waste functions,
the skin, liver, bowels and lungs undertake the work of elimination—a work these organs are unfitted to perform.

It is readily understood that with this unnatural condition of things the whole body will soon become diseased, and death, alas!
will too often follow.

"Keep the kidneys in good tone and you will preserve your health" is a motto worth remembering.

Stuart's Gin and Buchu

Is a true kidney tonic. Quickly taken up by the blood and filtered out by the little kidney tubes, it is consequently directly applied to the affected spots.

SUITS AND SUITS.

Were What Judge Tanner Had to Contend with Yesterday.

A NUMBER OF DIVORCES WANTED.
Damage Suits Ranging in Amount from $2,500 to $25,000 Filed—Yesterday Was Return Day.

Yesterday was return day in the office of Judge Tanner and suits of all sorts were filed; divorce suits, damage suits, suits on account, in fact, suits to suit anybody.
Stories of alleged woeful accidents resulting in permanent injuries, histories of domestic troubles and unbearable cruel treatment, and concise statements of business misunderstandings with prayers for relief were all told in the same legal form.

Mrs. Lillie Fambro filed a suit for divorce yesterday against her husband, T. J. J.
Fambro. The petition sets forth that the two were married on the 25th of February 1892, and that eight months after the marriage ceremony had taken place Fambro began a series of, or system, of cruel treatment.

It is alleged that after a baby was born to them the husband renewed his cruel treatment, and that when the infant was only three or four weeks old Fambro slapped it in the mouth. On one occasion it is said that he slapped the baby and held his hand over its mouth to stifle its cries;
the child was with difficulty revived by the mother, who was still very weak. At one time, the petitioner alleges, she asked him for a stamp to put on a letter which she had written to her relatives; Fambro refused, saying that they, the relatives, were not worth 2 cents. He had previously refused to let his wife go on a visit to her old home. She asks for a total divorce and permanent alimony.

He became a Habitual Drunkard.
Another suit for divorce was that of Mrs. Fannie Endora Snider, who says that she was married to one O. H. Snider in November of 1886. The petition declares that he became a habitual drunkard, and did not aid in the support of their several children. The petitioner alleges that she opened a boarding house in order that she might earn money for the support of the children, and that as soon as her husband heard of it he made a regular practice of coming to the boarding house for his meals, not paying anything for them.
He became so obnoxious that Mrs. Snider was obliged to close her little hotel. She sues for a total divorce and a temporary alimony.

Two More Divorce Suits Filed.
Marie Mercer sues for a divorce from her husband, T. Mercer. She alleges that immediately after the marriage he began to curse and to treat her with violence on a long and serious illness. They have no children and petitioner wants her maiden name, which is Marie Kerr, restored along with the total divorce.

Mantha Nolan desires a divorce from her husband, W. T. Nolan. She says that they lived together for some time as husband and wife, but that the said William T. Nolan deserted her without any cause whatever.
The kind of divorce she desires is a total one.

Some Heavy Damage Suits.
Mary Louise Tracy filed a suit yesterday on the Atlanta City Railway Company for $25,000. She alleges that the company accused her of being short in her accounts and that she was a saleswoman at the store.

This suit is followed by one from her uncle J. G. St. Amant, who sues the company for $25,000. He alleges that he paid $250 to the said company to cover
an alleged shortage of Mary Louise Tracy, his niece. He has since discovered that there was no shortage according to the petition, and that the company has refused to pay back the amount paid to it by him.

A suit for damage to the amount of $20,000 was filed yesterday by William
William on account of the death of his son, William, who was killed in a collision
on the Atlanta City Railway Company. The boy was standing on the front end of a car on the platform and was crushed to death. The mortem of the two cars were unable to control them, and one of the mortem jumped. The accident occurred about two months ago.

They Want $5,000 Apiece.
O. C. Watkins, through his next friend and father, sues the Georgia, Carolina and Northern railroad for $5,000 damages.
Daniel Youngblood filed a suit yesterday against Receiver Comer, representing the Central road, for $5,000 damages. He claims that he is suing the Atlanta and West Point road for $5,000 damages. He claims that he had a ticket which should have guaranteed him a through passage to Port McPherson, but that he was put off at East Point.

John Carr, next friend for H. J. Carr, who is a minor, has filed a suit against the Atlanta Consolidated Street Railway Company. He puts the damages received at $5,000. Carr was put off a car Joe Young has filed a suit against the city of Atlanta for damages received while at work for the city. He was injured by a derelict falling on him.

Rev. Mr. L. N. Brownlee has filed a suit against W. H. Green and Ballif B. C.
Summers for $5,000 damages. He alleges that he was arrested without cause, Green alleging that he was a man named Smith.

J. M. Gay sues the Consolidated for $5,000.

This Is a Falling Off.
John Ralander filed a suit against the Atlanta Consolidated Street Railway for $2,500 damages. The petition alleges that a car ran into his wagon.

A number of other suits were also filed yesterday.

Too Much Holiday
got him off the even track and brought on a fresh attack of indigestion and dyspepsia. It was Simmons Liver Regulator that cured him this time. It never fails. You want keep it on hand also for any bilious attack or for constipation. It is the emergency remedy, unlike pills in the effect. No gripings and does not deplete. Try it once.

The action of Carter's Little Liver Pills is pleasant, mild and natural. They gently stimulate the liver, and regulate the bowels, but do not purge. They are sure to please.
Try them.

A Happy Party.
Yesterday Mr. Mickelberry left for the great White City with a party of twenty-five, from many of the state of Georgia.
The party will be joined by sixteen young ladies. Mr. Mickelberry is making a specialty of looking after ladies unattended. He is safe going to Chicago with him as walking the streets of Atlanta.
Mr. Mickelberry has his own special cars, which go through without change. His next party will leave Monday, the 21st. Let all

SOMETHING OF INTEREST TO ALL

Do We Eat to Live?
Or do we live to eat? That is a question I hear often discussed. Well, one may take either horn of the dilemma, the stern fact states us in the face—we must eat.

Now comes up the great and most important problem. It is this: Where to go and where to buy? First—Where to go, is to a house that keeps a general assortment of all goods that are needed in one's family, and at the same time, fresh, clean and nice, and of the best and most select brands, and such a house must have a trade that will enable it to buy largely and receive goods daily, consequently fresh.

Where to Buy—Is from a house that keeps full stocks and will, in all and every way, treat and deal with you fairly and honestly and where you can buy as well, if not better, by an order than in person. We claim we have at least just such facilities in Atlanta afforded by the two large grocery houses of W. H. Hoyt, on Whitehall and Peachtree streets. Mr. Hoyt's stores are located all over the state, and I will go further and say over a good portion of the state as he makes a specialty of furnishing a great number of the best hotels, boarding houses and families in Georgia as well as Florida, South Carolina and Alabama. He keeps in constant lots and for cash, and he can sell at regular wholesale prices and also give purchasers the very great advantage of buying at case prices, as he will break and sell at package prices, the latter being the lots left over he can daily use in his two large retail stores.

Mr. Hoyt has an immense trade on his famously popular brand of Royal Flour, his Hamo coffee and Tolo Tea. He has taken years in selecting and perfecting these brands and he will stand rigidly by them as the best money, time and experience can produce.
He also takes much pride and care in his brands of sweet Jersey butter. T. H. B.
